

CM Receipt Printing

Customer Master integrates with a variety of receipt printers to give your company flexibility in the type of documentation you provide to customers.

Receipts from five CM screens

Receipt printers can be used to print transaction information from five Customer Master screens:

- Payment entry
- Pending payments
- Payment entry - purchases
- Payment entry - history
- Purchases

In instances where it is appropriate to print the information on letter-sized paper, this option is still available throughout the program.

Save money and trees

When Customer Master is integrated to a receipt printer, you not only can save money, but also space in your front office. Customer Master's receipt printer integration was designed to work with small devices that typically print receipts on three-inch rolls of paper. Compared to regular office printers, these small devices use considerably less paper and ink. With small printers, you'll not only reduce your company's expenses, but also help the environment as less paper will be used to meet your printing needs.

These small printers also occupy much less physical space than full-size office printers. This newly available space can be used to display office signs or advertising collateral promoting your company's products and services. You'll also devote less space to the storage of paper as the rolls used by

Key Benefits

- Gives your company more options for creating customer receipts
- Lower printing expenses through reduced paper and ink usage
- Environmentally friendly as less paper is used for receipts
- Less space is required to house a printer in your company's front office
- Wide variety of compatible printers receipt printers are compact and take up very little space.

Flexible printer options

Please consult your MACC Client Relations Manager or Account Manager prior to purchasing a printer for your company. We maintain a list of printers that integrate effortlessly with Customer Master, and using a printer from the list will ensure your company enjoys a reliable and convenient printing experience. For assistance in using receipt printers with Customer Master, contact your Software Support Representative.