

MACC's Application Recovery Service

If disaster strikes, is your company ready?

With MACC's Application Recovery Service (MARS), it can be. Whether the threat is an environmental disaster, weather emergency or equipment failure, MARS gives you access to a secured copy of your customer and financial records which will allow you to continue to serve your community if the unthinkable occurs.

A great first step for your business interruption plan

Your company needs to prepare for business interruptions and MARS is designed to be an integral part of your company's plans. The service backs up your company's Customer and Accounting Master databases to MACC's servers. Besides storing your critical data offsite, in the wake of a disaster, MARS also allows you to quickly begin using your MACC products through our MSaaS cloud solution.

Here is how it works

When your company enrolls in MARS, we will configure your databases to automatically backup to MACC each night. Backups are transferred over a secured internet connection and monitored daily by MACC's Technical Support Team. If disaster strikes and your company declares an emergency, MACC will activate your Customer Master and Accounting Master databases within our hosted MSaaS environment and work with your staff to get you connected. You will be able to access your data from a Windows* computer with an Internet connection. MACC is committed to having your data available to you within 24 hours or less.

Once the emergency passes, we will restore the database back to your working environment at

*Windows 8.1 or newer.
